may be, hath endured a griefe might equal yours, if both were iuſtly weighed, though wayward fortune did maligne my ſtare, my deriuation was from anceſtors who ſtood equiuolent with mighty Kings, but time hath rooted out my parentage, and to the world and aukward caſualties, bound me in ſeruitude, I wil deſiſt but there is ſomething glowes vpon my cheek, and whiſpers in mine eare, Goe not till he ſpeake,

Per, My fortunes parentage, good parentage to equall mine; was it not thus, what ſay you?

Mar. I ſaide, my Lord, if you did know my parentage, you would not doe me violence.

Per. I do thinke ſo, pray you turne your eye vpon me, ye'are like ſome-thing that, what Country-women heare of theſe ſhewes?

Mar. No, nor of any ſhews, yet I was mortally brought foorth and am no other then I appeare.

Per. I am great with woe, and ſhalbe deliuered weeping: my deareſt wife was like this maid, and ſuch a one my daughter might haue beene: my Queenes ſquare browes, her ſtature to an inch, as wand-like ſtraite, as ſiluer voyc'ſt, her eyes as iewell-like and caſt as richly, in pace another Iuno. Who ſtarues the eares ſhee feedes and makes them hungry, the more ſhe giues them ſpeech; where do you liue?

Mar. Where I am but a ſtranger from the decke, you may diſcerne the place.

Per. Where were you bred? and how atchieu'd you theſe endowments which you make more rich to owe?

Mar. If I ſhould tell my hiſtory it would ſeeme like lies diſdaind in the reporting.

Per. Prethee ſpeake, falſeneſſe cannot come from thee, for thou lookeſt modeſt as iuſtice, and thou ſeemſt a Pallas for the crownd truth to dwell in, I will beleeue thee, and make my ſenees credit thy relation, to points that ſeeme impoſſible, for thou lookſt like one I loued indeed; what were thy friends? Didſt thou not ſtay when I did puſh thee backe, which was when I perceiud thee that thou camſt from good diſcent.

Mar. So indeed I did.

Per. Report thy parentage, I thinke thou ſaidſt thou beene toſt from wrong to iniury, and that thou thought griefes might equall mine, if both were opened.

Mar. Some ſuch thing I ſaid, and ſaid no more, but w thoughts did warrant me was likely.

Per. Tell thy ſtory, if thine conſidered prooue the th part of my endnrance, thou art a man, and I haue ſuffere gyrle, yet thou doſt look like patience, gaxing on Kings and ſmiling extreamity out of acte, what were thy friend loſt thou thy name my moſt kinde virgin? recount I do thee, Come ſit by me.

Mar. My name is Marina,

Per. Oh I am mockt, and thou by ſome inſenced G hither to make the world to laugh me.

Mar. Patience good ſir, or heere ile ceaſe.

Per Nay Ile be patient, thou little knowſt how tho ſtartle me to call thy ſelfe Marina.

Mar. The name was giuen me by one that had ſame my father aud a King,

Per. How, a kings daughter and cald Marina,

Mar. You ſaid you would beleeue me, but not to be ble of your peace I will end here.

Pre. But are you fleſh and bloud?
Haue you a working pulſe, and no Fairy?
Motion will ſpeake on, where were you borne:
And wherefore call Marina:

Mar. Cald Marina, for I was borne at ſea.

Per. At ſea who! was thy mother:

Mar. My mother was the daughter of a king, who minute I was borne, as my good Nurſe Lychorida hath uered weeping.

Per. O ſtop there a little, this is the rareſt dreame
That ere dull ſleepe did mocke ſad foole with all,
This cannot be my daughter, buried, well, where were y
Ile heare you more to the bottome of your ſtory, and terrupt you.

Mar. You ſcorne, beleeue me were beſt I did giue o
